School Directory 2013

Philadelphia Area
Private and Parochial Elementary and Middle Schools

celebrating hope, opportunity and success!

This booklet is designed to be used as a guide only. A listing in this guide does not guarantee a school's eligibility for CSFP funding. The school descriptions contained in this directory were submitted by participating schools. CSFP is not responsible for the content of the descriptions.

Parents are strongly encouraged to do research on any school that is of interest and always visit the school prior to enrollment.

Introduction

Choosing the right school for your child is a very important decision that should not be entered into lightly. This School Directory was designed to help you begin the process of finding a school that is the right match for your child. Picking up this guide is a great first step, but there is a lot more work to be done.

You should start researching potential schools for your child now. Many schools have deadlines, and others fill to their capacity before the school year begins. The longer you wait, the fewer options you will have. Please keep in mind that CSFP has new eligibility requirements that schools must meet before they are able to receive scholarship funding from CSFP. Please call our office if you are not sure that a school is eligible.

Before you begin any official research, sit down and think about what is important to you. Here are some preliminary questions that you may want to ask yourself before doing any investigating.

- Would you prefer that your child attends a big school or a small school? There are pros and cons to both.
- What are your child's specific interests that you would like to see developed and addressed at their school?
- What is your child's learning style?
- Are modern school facilities important to you?
- Is student diversity important to you?

Listed below are six other core areas to consider when choosing a school:

1. Academics – What is the school's educational philosophy? Are the classes too advanced/not advanced enough/appropriately advanced for my child? Will my child have a lot of "catching up" to do to succeed in this school?
2. Values – Is the school associated with a church, denomination or religion? If yes, is the religious aspect emphasized or is it more of an historical association? Are these religious aspects in line with my personal beliefs?
3. Discipline – What type of behavior and safety rules are in existence at this school? Does the school communicate with parents regularly about progress and/or problems?
4. Location – How long does it take to get there? Is transportation accessible? Is there a cost for transportation?
5. Price – Does the school offer its own financial aid? What fees are there in addition to tuition? What types of payment plans are available? What are the implications if I fall behind in my tuition payments? Does the school have a refund policy if I decide that this school is not the right one for my child?
6. Special Features – Are there special programs for gifted or learning disabled students (if appropriate)? Is tutoring available should my child fall behind? Is there before and after school care? Is there an active parents' association? Are extracurricular activities offered at this school? Are they ones that your child has an interest in?

Once you have considered all of the topics listed above, make a list of schools that meet your criteria and arrange to visit each of them. Include your child in the process as much as possible. Be sure to visit schools before making a final decision; a school may look very different in person than it appears on paper. Use the resources around you; ask family, friends and neighbors for information or feedback to help with your decision. The internet is also an extremely valuable tool to get information. Internet access is available at your local library if you do not have a computer at home. Three websites that can provide helpful information are:

www.greatphillyschools.org

www.nces.ed.gov

Finally, please feel free to contact the CSFP office if you have other questions. We are happy to help in any way that we can. Good luck!

Important Notice

Please keep in mind that as of September 2013, schools must meet certain criteria in order to receive funding from CSFP.

Please visit our website for the most up-to-date list of eligible schools:

HBCS provides a Christ-centered education for students in pre-school through 8th grade. The mission of the Academy is to glorify God through enriching the whole child while constantly pursuing academic excellence with a Christ-centered understanding of each student's potential and individual value and purpose. HBCA encourages all families who desire a Christian education for their children to consider the rich academic and spiritual program the Academy offers. The success of the program is due, in part, to the gifted and dedicated men and women who create a familial environment in which every student can freely and fully participate, and work to the best of their ability. Small class size allows for the one-on-one support needed for students to flourish academically and practically in school.

We believe that understanding learning styles is key to educational success. Children participate in project based, hands-on activities related to reading, mathematics, science, art, music, drama, social studies, computer, etc. Biblical principles are instilled and taught in an age appropriate manner. We accept all children. Our small classes provide opportunities for children to travel, take trips, and enjoy program based educational learning activities throughout the state. Small classes allow the students to be more independent and move at a faster pace educationally.

ADVICE FROM THE SCHOOLS

We know that going through this process and choosing a school can be difficult. So we asked administrators and admissions professionals at our participating schools to weigh in with advice and suggestions for families looking at private schools for the first time. Read their suggestions below.

It is very important to follow your heart and your instincts. Sometimes you just get a sense of the atmosphere of the school before you look at one piece of paperwork!
-Calvary Christian Academy

Expect the school to know, respect, challenge and understand your child well and hold him/her accountable to the highest standards of academics and citizenship. Be prepared to participate fully and be a full partner in your child's education and with the school community. Be prepared to sacrifice financially--you are not alone!
-Springside School

We believe that it is important to not only tour the school, but also to meet with the administrators to talk about the goals and mission of the school. Parents should feel empowered to determine whether the school can provide the best learning environment to match their child's unique learning style.
- Our Lady of Hope Regional Catholic School

Visit the school and ask questions. Don't let finances be the determining factor.
-Hunting Park Christian

Visit schools, talk to teachers and administrators, talk to current parents, and see students in action. Get a sense of whether or not the school will be a good match for your child and for your family.
-Lansdowe Friends

Look not for the most offerings, but the best offerings. The schools being considered must be able to prove the high quality of their programs and instructors. -Our Lady of Port Richmond

Private schools expect parents to be directly involved with all aspects of their children's education. While we may provide more opportunities than public schools, we are not a replacement for the parent's role.
-Chestnut Hill Academy

Look for a school that meets your family's expectations as well as the needs of your child. -The Pen Ryn School

Many schools in the Delaware Valley area have similar successful outcomes, but each has a unique approach to achieving those outcomes. Try to determine which schools best match your student and your family.
-Friends Central School

A school's success is based upon the students it produces! Visit and get to know the children making up the school's community.
-Hunting Park Christian Academy

Children's Scholarship Fund Philadelphia is a privately funded program whose mission is to broaden educational opportunities for low-income families. The fund provides necessary tuition assistance to help Philadelphia children, in K-8th grades, gain financial access to quality schools.

Over the last twelve years, CSFP has received more than 125,000 qualified applications from low-income Philadelphia families for our 12,500 four-year scholarships. We will continue to offer new scholarships yearly, as funding permits.
